Why LIFE Class?

We were made for relationships, not only a relationship with God, but also relationships with other people. Life was made by God to be lived in community with other people. This is especially true of the Christian life. It is impossible to honor God and grow as a Christian without living in community with other Christians. This is why God, in his goodness and wisdom, created the Church; Christians need each other for life and godliness. As we seek to make disciples, we are doing so in a way that acknowledges our need for each other. The primary way this happens is through our LIFE Classes. LIFE stands for: love, instruction, fellowship, and evangelism. These are the four elements we strive to have as a part of each one of these small group Bible studies.

Our sense of community isn't limited to LIFE Classes. Community happens where normal life happens: at home, at work, at school, with family, with friends. Biblical community is just that: biblical. We strive to make each of the elements of the community in our church centered around Scripture.
